

Welcome to the
Personnel Service
Center's
25th Anniversary
Celebration
August 22, 2007

In 1979, the Coast Guard established a Military Pay Center in Riverdale, Maryland, a suburb of Washington, D.C., by moving the Joint Uniform Military Pay System (JUMPS) conversion team and other pay-related functions out of CG Headquarters in Washington. This was a temporary move until a more geographically centralized location could be found.

In 1977 a newly erected federal building known as the Frank Carlson Federal Building (named after the late Kansas Senator) was opened in Topeka, Kansas. Five years later in 1982 this became the Center's new permanent location.

As pay automation streamlined, many additional personnel processing functions became the Center's responsibility resulting in a name change to Pay and Personnel Center (PPC) in mid-1983.

Over the next 14 years many more duties were added to the PPC's list of responsibilities driving yet another change of name to reflect the services provided.

In March of 1997, the PPC became known as the Human Resources Service & Information Center (HRSIC). In 2003 the name was changed to Personnel Service Center (PSC). With a host of responsibilities, PSC continues to strive for and deliver excellence in service to its more than 100,000 worldwide customers.
